FORT PIERCE WESTWOOD

Vet assisting class

By: Logan Ankiel

We here at the Fort Pierce Westwood FFA are excited to announce the re-opening of our veggie garden. This year the bounty of produce we grow will be given to cafeterias at schools in St. Lucie County for students to enjoy. We are working closely with researchers at USDA and Child Nutrition Services to provide local schools with fresh fruits and veggies. Near the beginning of next week, we will be bedding down the garden area, and we will also be giving the area an ASD treatment. After that, we will begin planting at the end of October! We are planning on planting an assortment of fruits and vegetables like broccoli, cauliflower, collards, strawberries, peppers, onions and more!

Not only does the Fort Pierce Westwood FFA have Cattle, Swine and Chicken but we also have small animals including dogs and kittens with our Vet program. Students in the vet program get hands on experiences with things that vet technicians get to do every day, recently the Vet 2 kids got to practice pulling feline (cat) vaccines. Along with the hands-on experiences the dedicated students will get certified while they are in the program.

FORT PIERCE WESTWOOD

Eggs for sale

By: Nate Zajac

By Samantha Watson

During the last week of August, in Mrs. Blankenbaker sixth period Agritechnology t 1 I was able to watch and assist in the Breeding soundness exam of the chapters bulls. Dr.Adams, his wife, and Waylon came to Westwood to help administrate the test. Dr.Adams educated the class about how to take a collection and what characteristics for a good bull. Neither of the bulls wanted to stand and give a good collection for the test. Due to this being the second test not giving a good collection it was determined that they should just be sold at market. The two bulls were sold at the Okeechobee livestock market on September 11th.

What came first the chicken or the egg? Well for the Fort Pierce Westwood FFA, the chickens came first but here come the eggs. Our hens have started to lay their eggs and Mrs. Blankenbaker will be selling our farm fresh eggs for $3 a dozen. They will be for sale in the next few weeks, so come and get them.
